The Aga Khan Palace, an iconic monument located in Pune, was the destination of our field visit. Built in 1892 by Sultan Muhammed Shah Aga Khan III, the palace holds immense historical importance as a landmark associated with the Indian freedom movement. It served as a prison for Mahatma Gandhi and other prominent leaders during the Quit India Movement in 1942. The palace is also a symbol of generosity and architectural brilliance.

Description of the Visit:

The palace is a grand structure with Italian arches, expansive lawns, and intricate wooden work.

Its design blends European and Indian architectural styles, emphasizing both utility and elegance.

Inside the palace, we explored the Gandhi Museum, which houses: Photographs and personal belongings of Mahatma Gandhi and Kasturba Gandhi.

Letters, documents, and articles that highlight their lives and the Indian independence movement.

The memorials of Kasturba Gandhi and Mahadev Desai in the serene garden area were particularly moving. The peaceful atmosphere reflected the solemn history of the site.

An informative session was conducted where the guide answered questions about the palace's historical and architectural aspects.

Learning Outcomes:

- The visit helped us appreciate the sacrifices made by freedom fighters and the importance of their contributions to India's independence.
- We learned about the architectural and cultural synthesis that the palace represents.
- The visit highlighted the importance of preserving heritage sites for future generations.

The field visit to Aga Khan Palace was a memorable and enriching experience. It provided valuable insights into the Indian freedom struggle and the architectural grandeur of the past. Such visits play a crucial role in fostering a sense of pride and responsibility toward preserving our heritage.
